LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS.

Will Preach at Clinton.
Rev. E. D. Wilkin, brother of Judge Wilkin, will preach the coming year at Clinton. He goes there from Carlinville. Speaking of him the Enquirer of Carlinville says:

Our people without regard to sect will regret to hear of Bro. Wilkin's removal to another field. During his residence here he has by his uniform kindness and christian deportment made hosts of friends among all classes. In his intercourse with people, whether in the house of mourning or the house of mirth, he was always ready to perform his part, and hundreds of people in Carlinville will always retain a warm place in their hearts for E. D. Wilkin. We congratulate the people of Clinton on securing the services of this truly good man.

Coming Wednesday Night.
She was an old colored lady, and she paid her admittance to the gallery to see the Haverly-Cleveland Minstrels and occupied a front seat at an early hour. When she saw the first act she expressed herself loudly and freely, "Blinds my eyes! beautiful! beautiful!" And was particularly taken with the grand march of the "Egyptian Flanagans," when she believed that wonderful evolution she forgot herself entirely and jumping to her feet cried out, "Looker beah, you niggers, take off them duds, they's too rich for you blood!" The great Minstrel troupe will be seen at the Grand on Wednesday evening.

The attempt to carry the compulsory education law into effect in Chicago has met with a new difficulty. Many of the children of school age are not sufficiently clothed to be sent to school. As they cannot be compelled to attend without proper clothing, the superintendent of the compulsory education department has made application to the county board for a grant of clothing, hats and shoes for such children of school age as are found to be without the clothing necessary to enable them to attend school. The board, it is understood, will refuse to grant the application, though a number of the members hold the view that it is their duty to do so, and that the taxes paid by the citizens could not be put to a better use than to prevent the increase of criminals and to make good citizens of the children. It is stated that charitable people will take the matter in hand if the board does not, and that every child found to be desirous of attending school, but prevented by want of clothing, will be promptly supplied.

THINKS DECATUR A HUMMER.

W. J. Mize Struck with the Beauty and Thrift of Our City.

William J. Mize, who comes from the windy city of Chicago, where we hope the World's fair will be held, was in Decatur yesterday for the first time in six months, and he was amazed at the march of improvement in the city where he used to publish a daily Bourbon organ and at the same time officiated as the poorly paid secretary of the State Democratic Central Committee. Now Mr. Mize is in the job printing and real estate business in Chicago, but he had to come to Decatur before he saw an electric street railway in operation; and when he got aboard one of the Citizens' summer cars he did so with a nervous feeling, not comprehending the mechanism of the system. He thought Chicago had about everything going worth having, but he had to acknowledge that Decatur was far ahead in electrical development. He is right. He spent many loose nickels in taking restful trips on the cars. And then he was pleased to note how energetically the street paving improvements had been pushed. He came near being nipped for several hundred dollars as he owns property on West Wood street near the corner of Church. He will probably come in for assessment next year. Before leaving for his home on the lake shore he had a look through the Powers Grand Opera House, a treat that he enjoyed hugely. He pronounced it one of the finest temples he had ever seen. Mr. Mize believes that ere long Chicago will add electricity for street car motive power, in the residence part of the city at least. In this connection it is of special interest to give the following on ELECTRICAL DEVELOPMENT.

The Philadelphia Ledger says that the electric light and motor business has all been developed since the Centennial exhibition of 1876, when the only exhibits of this kind were a couple of Gramme dynamos and a few expensive arc lamps run by clock work, and of no practical use. Yet, to-day, according to the Philadelphia Ledger, the American Electric Light Association, this country has $510,000,000 invested as capital in these industries. The arc and incandescent systems of lighting have been developed to a point where the cost of lighting in the United States is $7,763,788 incandescent. As one arc light is the electrical equivalent of nine or ten incandescent lamps, the energy represented in the two systems is nearly equal. The electric railway business is evidently growing as the presidents report 109 roads in operation, using 775 miles of track and 130 motor cars; but this is believed to be only the beginning of a much greater development of this branch of electrical work.

EXCURSIONS TO THE SIOUX CITY CORN PALACE.

The Eighth Wonder of the World.

The enormous crops of Iowa and Nebraska, the prospective opening of the Sioux Reservation, of South Dakota, between now and spring, and the great Corn Palace to be held at Sioux City, Iowa, on September 23rd and 24th, the great day for investments, for business locations, and for permanent homes, but you who have not visited this section within the past two years, cannot realize the rapid strides that have been made in the development of every industry, and in the building up of a mighty city, and a great commercial and manufacturing center, in the very heart of this unexcelled Northwest. Sioux City, Iowa, the only Corn Palace city in the world, is the largest and most important position of this section. More than thirty million acres of undeveloped lands in the hands of the Black Hills are coming to light, and the prospect of treasure here is very rich. No wonder everybody is preparing to visit the Sioux City Corn Palace, which will be open from September 23rd to October 2nd, and the Illinois Central Railroad, to accommodate the thousands of people from Wisconsin, who desire to visit this wonderful city—and still more who desire to visit the Corn Palace, will make a special excursion, leaving from Chicago, Ill., on September 23rd, and returning to Chicago, Ill., on October 2nd. The excursion will include a visit to the Corn Palace, and a visit to the Corn Palace, and a visit to the Corn Palace. The excursion will include a visit to the Corn Palace, and a visit to the Corn Palace, and a visit to the Corn Palace.

The Dog and the Lamb.

A certain lady had once a valuable St. Bernard of excellent pedigree, carefully trained, and in all respects of well nigh ideal excellence save for one fault: he would kill lambs.

He was beaten, he was beaten, he was imprisoned, the body of the latest lamb which had fallen victim to his fangs was fastened around his neck as a badge of shame, but all to no avail. His mistress concluded that it was impossible to break him of his fault and that she must sell him.

While matters were in this state a friendly farmer who had upon some occasion got into his head the fact that the dog's mistress was fond of pets sent her a money order, all gay with ribbons and looking as innocent as innocence itself. The lady was in despair. She expected that her dog would fall upon the lamb and tear it limb from limb; but having in the past had much experience with pets she said to herself that if this catastrophe was to happen she did not propose to have it postponed until she became deeply attached to the new owner, and so liberally led the lamb up to the dog, said to him that it was her lamb, and directed him to watch it. The dog looked at her rather wistfully, evidently requesting permission to tear the pretty innocent, but she sternly shook her head and departing left the pair together on the lawn.

She was willing to admit, now that the trial proved successful, that she had no idea that it would, and that she expected to find the lamb strewn with the dismembered fragments of the lamb. When a few hours later she returned, however, the dog was found to have taken the lamb into his especial favor and under his especial protection. He lay down with it, he followed it about, and seemed to have become uncommonly fond of it. In a way now as all added to his previous fondness. In short the lamb and the dog became the closest of friends, and as long as the two did live they continued to dwell together in peace and affection. And the remarkable part of the tale is that from that day the dog no more molested any lambs whatsoever. It was a plain case of similia similibus curantur. The dog was at once and forever cured of his vice, and his mistress relates this story to admiring friends with mingled pride and affection.—Boston Courier.

Chopin's Method.

George Sand has given us a vivid sketch of Chopin's conscientiousness as a composer. "He shut himself up in his room for entire days," she says, "weeping, walking about, breaking his pen, repeating and changing a bar a hundred times, and beginning again next day, only to go back and write that which he had traced at the first essay." (Oh, modern composers, read and learn!) As regards his creativeness, George Sand says that "it descended upon his piano suddenly, completely, suddenly, or it came itself in his head during his walks, and he made haste to hear it by rushing to the instrument." I have already mentioned the fact that when he wrote his last mazurka he was too weak to try it on the piano. In one of his letters he speaks of a polonaise being ready in his head.

These facts indicate that he composed mentally, although, no doubt, during the improvisations many themes occurred to him which he remembered and utilized. Some times the pictures in his mind became so vivid as to form real hallucinations. Thus, it is related that one evening when he was alone in the dark trying over the A major Polonaise, which he had just completed, he saw the door open, and in a moment a procession of Polish knights and ladies in medieval costumes—the same, no doubt, that his imagination had pictured while he was composing. He was so alarmed at this vision that he fled through the opposite door and did not venture to return. Another illustration of the relation between genius and insanity.—Chopin and Other Musical Essays—Howey T. Pinck.

Old Fables.

An Egyptian fable states that on one occasion a man had prepared a very savory pot of herbs, which a wall vulture broke. The unfortunate animal was generally regarded for its voracity, but when the man went to pick up the fragments of his prepared delicacy he found a venomous serpent coiled among them. A very similar story, in all probability arising out of the same fable, tells how a favorite falcon saved a king from swallowing a live serpent. His majesty had raised a drinking vessel, presumably one of the old wine carboys, pots, to his lips, when the faithful bird flew suddenly down, and throwing its full weight against the vessel, upset it. The king, in his wrath, killed the bird, whereupon he discovered that there had been a serpent in the water, and that the martyred bird had saved his life. In the Greek there is another story of this kind. A peasant liberated an eagle from the clutches of a dragon. The latter, out of revenge, poisoned the water which the peasant was about to drink, but the eagle showed its gratitude by upsetting the vessel and spilling its contents.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Electric Launchees.

Launchees propelled by electricity are now common on the Thames. Heretofore the use of the steam launch has been attended with more or less discomfort, but by means of electric storage batteries the distasteful features of common navigation are done away with. The use of the storage batteries involves obtaining a supply of electricity whenever this may be needed. To accomplish this floating electric power stations have been put at various points on the river.—Detroit Free Press.

Dumas once said to a young gentleman who was invited to a Russian soiree, and was dazzled with the stars and ribbons of the gilded man: "You are the most distinguished man here this evening," said Dumas to him; "you are the only one who is not decorated."

1. We are furnished with all our goods direct from the factories.
2. We save the middle-man's profit.
3. We have the advantage of the tremendous purchases made by the great Chicago wholesale house of L. L. Ferriss & Co., who handle more goods in one year than all Decatur shoe stores can sell in ten.
4. We get all our goods direct from the factories. All our goods are purchased by our buyer, Mr. L. L. Ferriss, and are shipped to us direct from factories which run for the wholesale trade.
5. We own our goods at a lower figure and can sell them for less money.
6. We sell more goods than any would-be competitor and in any event would have a tremendous advantage.

These are cold hard facts which every shoe dealer here knows, but will not publicly recognize because of the damage it will do to his business. You, good reader, have good sound sense, reason and judgment. How can your judgment tell you to buy shoes at any other place than the great house of Almost Completed.

The graving of the Bloomington road

one mile north of the city limits at the end of Water street, is almost finished. It will take 3,000 yards of gravel. Commissioner

Allen states that if the Citizens' company extend their electric railway to the Sawyer lane they will have to build the road at the side of the gravel road. They can do that easily enough.

New Buildings.

I. Baldwin has drawn the plans for a new residence soon to be erected by Mrs.

C. A. Tuttle.

George Haus, the barber, will put up a

The Cars Moving.

This morning between 6 and 6:30 o'clock the Decatur Electric Railway company had one of their palace cars running between the Union depot and Lincoln square to the St. Nicholas hotel corner. The car went rapidly up Main and down Corcoran street, one man was put in shape and will be started this afternoon. There are two other cars to be started, and as soon as the needed

motor trucks arrive they will be put on the rails, and the company will run cars regularly, probably by October 1st.
